DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
 - I. Claims 1-6, 14-16, drawn to operator sensing circuit and method comprising capacitor discharge range is effective to distinguish between the presence of an operator's hand and foreign material on the gripping surface for avoiding a false hands on signal, classified in class 324, subclass 663.
 - II. Claims 7-13, drawn to operator sensing circuit having charge transfer sensor, comprising a simulator electrode means for detecting a defect in the operator-sensing system classified in class 324, subclass 686.
 - III. Claims 17, drawn to operator sensing circuit having charge transfer sensor, in combination with mobile power equipment including internal combustion engine and magneto, classified in class 280, subclass 279.

Distinctness

Inventions I and II are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because invention I does not require a simulator electrode means for detecting a defect in the operator-sensing system. The subcombination has separate utility such as for detecting a defect in the operator-sensing system.

Inventions I and III are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because invention I does not require mobile power equipment including internal combustion engine and magneto. The subcombination has separate utility such as for operating an automobile having internal combustion engine and magneto.

Inventions II and III are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because invention II does not require mobile power equipment including internal combustion engine and magneto. The subcombination has separate utility such as for operating an automobile having internal combustion engine and magneto.

Why Restriction is Proper

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required for Group I is not required for Groups II and III, and the search required for Group II is not required for Group III restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

A telephone call was made to attorney/agent on record Mr. Markva, Neil on 5/4/2005 to request an oral election to the above restriction requirement, but did not result in an election being made.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
